
The standard interpretation of W. E. B. Du Bois’ seminal speech “The Conservation of Races” provides a strange and disjointed perspective that David Miguel Gray, PhD 2008, Harvard, disagrees with. In this lecture, Gray offers his own interpretation, which underlines Du Bois’ racial theory as fundamental to his project of solidarity.

Gray currently teaches at Colgate University and was awarded the William James Prize from the American Philosophical Association for his work on Du Bois in 2012.

Date: October 31, 2014
Time: 4:00 PM
Place: Duques Hall Room 255

For more information, please email philosop@gwu.edu.