CALL FOR PAPERS

Minds, Brains, and Persons
March 25, 2016

Keynote Address: Professor Bryce Huebner, Georgetown University
“Planning and Prefigurative Politics: The Nature of Freedom and the Possibility of Control”

The George Washington University Philosophy Club, in conjunction with the Department of Philosophy, will host our annual Undergraduate Philosophy Conference on March 25, 2016. The title of this year’s conference is ‘Minds, Brains and Persons’. Studies of the mind and brain are at the forefront of current research in philosophy and the sciences. In philosophy, questions about the mind arise not only in the study of the mind itself, but also in metaphysics, epistemology, ethics, action theory, and the philosophy of language, among other fields. We invite undergraduates to submit papers on any philosophical topic, but papers in or related to the philosophy of mind are strongly encouraged. Papers should be no longer than 3500 words, submitted by February 5, 2016.

Please format papers for blind review, including an abstract of no more than 250 words. Additionally, authors should submit a cover page listing their paper’s title, the author’s name, their college or university and year of graduation, along with a contact e-mail address and phone number. Authors can expect to be notified of their paper’s acceptance in late February, 2016.

Additional information and updates can be found at www.philevents.org, or on the GWU Philosophy Club’s Website at www.gwphilosophyclub.wordpress.com. Please address all submissions, in Microsoft Word Format, to gwphilosophyclub@gmail.com.
