Does desiring to do something give you a reason to do it? Can it be irrational to have a certain desire? What is the relationship between desire and pleasure? Is pleasure the ultimate motivation for everything we do? Join us as we address these questions and more, while exploring some of the exciting recent work on the philosophical significance of desire.